

Tracy Flack Bio

Tracy Flack is a coordinator for the Children's Miracle Network Hospitals program at Children's National Medical Center in Washington, DC. Tracy oversees several major corporate sponsor campaigns and programs, including Food Lion, Bloom, Bottom Dollar Foods, Dance Marathon at the University of Maryland (Terp Thon), and the city-wide DC Dance Marathon, which is only the second of its kind in the country and held its inaugural event this past November. Moving forward, she will be responsible for developing the Youth Fundraising Program for Children's National, including the growing success of dance marathons and Greek partners.

Born and raised in Miami, Florida, Tracy graduated from the University of Florida in 2010 with a Bachelor's of Science in Journalism. Prior to moving to DC and joining the Children's National team in July, 2011, Tracy worked for the Shands HealthCare Office of Development in Gainesville, Florida, where she also oversaw fundraising campaigns and events for Children's Miracle Network Hospitals.
